Memories in Stone

Thank you for choosing our 'memories in stone' brochure. Mendip memorials is located in the heart of the Mendip hills. We pride ourselves upon producing high quality stone memorials and masonry work through out the Bristol/Gloucester and South West regional area.

We offer a wide range of traditional and contemporary memorial designs and inscriptions produced using many different types of quarried stone at very competitive prices for placement in civic cemeteries, church yards, gardens of remembrance and also for export overseas. All our work is fully guaranteed for a 10 year period for workmanship, and 30 years for safety.

Within this brochure you will find many examples of memorials that can be produced. However we are unable to show all our range and designs specific to certain cemeteries. Therefore if you see a design you like in a cemetery or another brochure, or can't find what is required by cemetery regulations, please contact us for further information and a quote. You will also find a larger choice of memorials on our website:

www.mendipmemorials.co.uk

We have included a guide(s) within this brochure to help with material decisions, and inscription construction, as well as pointers to consider when looking for a memorial at the top of product pages.

However should you require further assistance, we would be more than happy to advise you with your decisions, so please do not hesitate to contact us via telephone, post or email.

Whilst traditional U.K. and European materials such as Slate, Portland stone, Yorkstone and Marble are still used for memorials, polished granite (where cemetery regulations allow) has steadily increased in popularity in recent years. As export markets have opened up, the cost of granite has come down to a level on par with other more traditional materials. The advantage of using granite to make a memorial speaks for itself. Granite is a much harder wearing stone, and with a polished finish virtually maintenance free. The material is ideally suited to the U.K climate in comparison to softer stone and marble materials which can discolour and weather more quickly in a shorter period of time.

Granite comes in many different colours and textures, and is sourced throughout the world. To the right are a few examples of colours and types available. Please note that as with all natural stone products the colours and patterns will vary from those shown. Each memorial made is unique and the colouration shown should only be used as a guide. Also it should be noted that from time to time stocks of material become exhausted and may no longer be available in enough quantity to make large memorials, more often a similar alternative can be found.

As you look through our brochure please bear in mind that any memorial design shown can usually be made in a different colour / type of material. As the price of granite varies considerably depending upon the type / colour chosen, we will be happy to requote for the supply of a specific material.

We can personalise any memorial with photographic images, we offer two main options for the reproduction of images upon a memorial, these are etched images and ceramic plaques (please note the type of material used for the memorial can influence which is appropriate). We should be able to reproduce most family photos in either format. The image provided should be the best contrast quality and sharpness possible, as we can only reproduce what is given. Usually wedding photos or professionally shot portraits provide the best results. If you are unsure if a photo is good enough to use, please contact us for advice. We can accept images in print, or high resolution digital format via email.

Increasingly information about a persons life can be found online, should you wish we can produce a QR symbol (Such as shown) for placement upon a memorial stone, in order that family members and the public in general can easily access their life history. Please contact us for further details.

All full memorials come with a soil centre filling to provide for a garden planting area. If you wish to make the centre easier to manage, we would suggest a chipping filling.

Probably the most common question we are asked with regard to producing a memorial is what should the memorial inscription say? Understandably most people don't consider what to write upon a stone until well after the person it relates to has passed away. The thought of trying to encapsulate a person's life in a few lines of text can be a daunting task, and can often lead to a family delaying the placement of a memorial or the making of a final decision on what memorial to have.

Our advice to all our clients is simply; there is no right or wrong way to write an inscription. It is personal to you and your family. It is true that most memorials seen in cemeteries contain similar inscription formats. Really the only requirement civic cemetery authorities stipulate is that the name of the person shown upon the memorial matches the name shown on that person's death certificate. Other than that, as long as the details provided upon the stone are legal, decent, honest and truthful you should not have any issues with what you wish to say. Church burial ground authorities can be more particular regarding the content of the inscription upon a memorial stone, so it is worth consulting the incumbent minister prior to making any final decisions.

On the whole memorial inscriptions will contain the following; however bear in mind this is only a guide;

Opening line – such as 'In loving memory', 'Cherished memories' or 'Sacred to the memory of'

Sentence determining a persons relationship'.....a beloved Son, Brother, Husband, Dad, Grandad etc

The deceased's name(s) as shown on the death certificate

The dates of birth and passing – these can be written several different forms – i.e 24.03.1962-24.03.2012 or 24 March 1962 -24 March 2012, or just the date of passing – and age on passing

Lastly an epitaph or verse appropriate to the person or to express a sentiment of love; such as 'Sadly missed', Peace perfect Peace, Forever in our thoughts – please see our separate verse(s) page for further inspiration.

If the memorial upon the grave plot requires further inscription in the future, room should be left at the time of first inscription.
